1. Upon receipt of ref a, Embassy approached Ministry of Justice with request for compilation of list of pertinent laws, especially as they related to international agreements cited in reference. Ministry indicated willingness to comply. As months passed, Embassy checked several times. In June of this year, Ministry representative assured us they had not forgotten project, but that there had been so many laws passed dealing with terrorism in Argentina--and it is position of GOA that this is internationally inspired, hence within purview of proposed study--that compilation was a major task. Ministry already overworked and compilation would have no immediate impact on situation; hence, they would get to it as they could.

2. Since June, new Minister and whole new team have been appointed at Ministry. Great confusion reigns there and there may soon be new changes in personnel, possibly up to ministerial level. Given these circumstances, Embassy has little hope that our request will be attended to any time soon.

3. Embassy itself, however, has over past few years reported promulgation of most significant new provisions dealing with international terrorism. Suggest, therefore, that INR may be able to compile fairly definitive list for contract research group if necessary--or perhaps group itself can do necessary research.
